AN ANGRY COMMITTEE.

G. CARSON KENYON SUMMONED TO APPEAR BEFORE IT.

Claims That He Meant no Reflection on the Committee by Last Night's Article.

A meeting of the Citizens' Sanitary Committee and the inspectors of the different sanitary districts was held this morning at headquarters.

Chairman Colburn stated that the object of the meeting was to take some action on the insinuations contained in articles in the Advertiser and Independent conveying the impression that the committee or some members of it were connected with the recent outrage on Frank Godfrey.

Secretary McStocker stated that directly after Godfrey was released from the cholera hospital he came up to the rooms of the committee and placed his name on the volunteer list.

G. W. Smith said that he had heard that Godfrey had been making remarks on the street, casting reflections on the work of the committee, and upon finding out that Godfrey had enrolled himself on the list of volunteers he had requested that his name be stricken off.

J. W. Jones said he was requested to notify Godfrey of this action and the latter came up to see McStocker about it. He was then requested to come up in the evening and make any statement he desired in the presence of the full committee. Mr. Thurston was the one who objected to any statement from Godfrey unless made in the presence of the whole committee.

Secretary McStocker stated that he afterwards received a note from Godfrey stating that he was ready to wait on the committee, and a messenger was afterwards sent to him to come up when he was again told not to make any statements except in presence of the whole committee.

Judge Cooper said he was present on the evening when Godfrey came up and that he then made some very strong statements against the Government in regard to the ill-treatment he claimed to have received while at the cholera hospital.

Mr. McStocker considered that only a miserable suspicious mind, accompanied by a disposition to pick up and create suspicion, would entertain such suspicions as were detailed in the Advertiser and Independent.

L. A. Thurston said he had made it his business to follow up the reported statements of Godfrey to the effect that he saw persons being prepared for burial while still alive, and eventually traced them to George H. Paris who said he heard the statement made by Godfrey. He then hunted up Godfrey and tared him to his face with making the assertion and Godfrey then and there admitted having done so. He found also that Godfrey had given an article on the subject to the Independent, which was refused publication. He had asked for this article but was told it had been returned to Godfrey. He then placed the whole matter in the hands of the Attorney-General, who was now considering it. He further stated that the reason he insisted that the full committee should be present when Godfrey made any statement or explanation was that he might be on hand to hear and refute it if necessary.

Geo. W. Smith corroborated much that Mr. Thurston had said. G. Carson Kenyon, who was present by special request, was invited by Lawyer Kinney to explain what was meant by the article in last night's Independent entitled "Lynch Law."

Mr. Thurston said he did not care what Kenyon thought about the Godfrey affair. What he wanted to know was what the article had reference to. He produced a copy of the paper containing the article and insisted on knowing what was intended by the words "Outrage committed under the eyes of government officials and the Committee."

Kenyon made a statement in which he said there was no intention to cast any reflection upon the Sanitary committee or any of its members.

The following resolution was then adopted in regard to the matter, and the committee adjourned:

Whereas, G. C. Kenyon, reporter for the Independent, having explained to the committee that the Independent meant to cast no reflection or suspicion upon the Sanitary Committee or any member thereof by an article entitled "Lynch Law," appearing in said paper Wednesday, September 18th, 1895;

RESOLVED, that said explanation be accepted in good faith and the matter dropped forthwith.
